

Hello Ms. Gilligan,

It is Patrick Egan again. I'm reading over the "comprehensive plan" and it confirms some of the misgivings I had about the un-public public rulemaking process. I hate to sound like the squeaky wheel, but a large group of stakeholders are being disenfranchised.

The cover letters sent to our esteemed members of congress allude to collaboration with the UAS community.

From the letters

"The completed work provides a common framework for evolving interagency coordination and planning and is a testament to the collaboration among representatives from the partner agencies and the UAS community."

Any objective participants most certainly know that this is not the case. Now I am put in the disposition of having to write all of these esteemed members of congress to tell them they were on the receiving end of erroneous information.

Furthermore, I was told that the current UAS ARC wasn't dealing with matters concerning small business. However, the document references the work that the small UAS ARC did and recommendations the current ARC will make. Again, there is no small business representation (stakeholder) present on the current ARC. Small business does not have a say in the "GOAL!" I have appealed to your office, and you personally to rectify this deficiency while we still have time.

Thank you, Patrick Egan
